Introduction

What is a Grimoire Is and Why is this Grimoire Book is Different

A grimoire is more than just a book of spells. It is a vessel of power, a treasury of words, symbols, and sacred acts that reach beyond the ordinary world. For centuries, grimoires have been the hidden companions of mystics, priests, and magicians pages inked in secrecy, guarded from the eyes of the unworthy. Many of these books have been shaped by human ambition, pulling from the stars, the earth, and the unseen to bend the world to the will of the one who dares to open them.

But the grimoire you now hold is not like the others. This is not the work of solitary sorcerers or cloistered alchemists. It is a collection of the divine workings entrusted to ancient prophets chosen ones whose hands moved not by their own desire but by the command of Heaven. Every word in these pages traces its root to visions, holy instructions, and moments when eternity broke into time. This book is not about forcing the world to obey you; it is about aligning yourself with the will that shaped the stars.

What lies ahead is both gift and burden. Each spell and ritual is a doorway into a place where the mortal and the divine meet. The difference between this grimoire and all others is simple: it does not serve you it serves the will of the One who first gave the prophets their power. And if you are ready, it will use you as it once used them.

2. How Ancient Prophets Were Both Spiritual Leaders and Practitioners of Divine Rituals

The word “prophet” often makes people think of one who simply speaks the future—a voice crying out, warning, guiding. But in truth, the prophets of old were far more than that. They were not merely messengers; they were doers. Their words carried weight because their actions carried power. They didn’t just speak of God’s might; they demonstrated it in the sight of nations.

Elijah stood on Mount Carmel, rebuilt an altar with his own hands, poured water upon the sacrifice until it overflowed, and then called upon the fire of Heaven to consume it all. Moses stretched forth his staff to part seas, strike rocks for water, and bring plagues upon Egypt at the word of the Most High. These were not empty gestures—they were sacred acts, each a ritual charged with divine purpose.

And this was not limited to the Hebrew prophets. Across the earth, in many cultures, the prophetic calling was matched with ritual action. The Magi read the heavens and journeyed to honor a divine sign with offerings. The Yoruba Babalawo spoke messages from the spirit world while performing rites that sealed the blessing. In every case, the prophet was more than a mouthpiece; they were the bridge joining Heaven’s word to Earth’s need through visible, powerful acts.

This grimoire preserves that union. These pages are not just for speaking; they are for doing. For building altars. For blessing oil. For setting stones in place, lighting fires, speaking ancient words at dawn, and calling what is unseen into the realm of the seen. To open this book is to prepare yourself to act—to move as the prophets moved, with both voice and hand.

3. A Short Warning About Respect for the Sacred and the Dangers of Misuse

Let there be no mistake the words you are about to read are not harmless. They are not poetry to admire from a safe distance. They are living patterns, and when followed, they awaken the same currents of power that answered the prophets long ago. Every spell, every ritual in this grimoire is a key and keys open doors. Not every door should be opened without purpose, and not every purpose will be free of consequence.

The prophets did not wield their power for amusement, pride, or personal greed. Every act they performed came at the cost of responsibility. To part the waters was to lead a people into freedom and to invite the wrath of those left behind. To call down fire was to prove the truth but also to end a challenge with deadly finality. Sacred power is impartial in its execution; it answers the call, but it also answers for the heart that calls it.

If you take these pages lightly, you may awaken forces that will demand payment you are not ready to give. To misuse what is here is to court judgment, and judgment is never gentle to the unworthy. Approach this book as you would approach a holy altar with clean hands, clear intent, and the humility to know that you are but a servant of something greater. Used in righteousness, this grimoire will protect, heal, and reveal wonders. Used wrongly, it will become the weight that crushes you.

CHAPTER ONE

SPELLS OF LIGHT AND PROTECTION

Spell 1: The Shield of Elijah

From the prophet Elijah's calling down of divine fire on Mount Carmel (1 Kings 18) to protect truth and repel evil.

Purpose:

To create a protective spiritual barrier around a person, home, or sacred space, repelling negative forces and ensuring divine presence rests there.

Materials :

Olive oil (pure, unblended)

A white linen cloth

A small bowl of clean water

A piece of frankincense resin or oil

A plain wooden staff or walking stick

Preparation:

Fast for at least one meal before the ritual. Prepare the space by cleaning it physically and keeping noise to a minimum. Light a candle or lamp as a symbol of divine fire.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Place the bowl of water in the center of your space.

Dip your fingers into the olive oil, anoint the white cloth, and tie it around the wooden staff.

Place the frankincense near the candle flame so its aroma fills the air.

Stand before the bowl of water, raise the staff, and say the incantation three times.

Dip the staff's end into the water, then mark the four corners of the space or walk around the person you wish to protect, making the sign of a circle in the air.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Adonai ori u'mageni; mi-yira?"

(“The Lord is my light and my shield; whom shall I fear?”)

Warnings:

Only perform this ritual when your intent is pure. This shield is tied to your spiritual alignment if your heart turns toward malice, the protection will fade.

Spell 2: The Lamp of Moses

Rooted in the moment Moses' face shone with divine radiance after speaking with God (Exodus 34:29)

Purpose:

To bring light into dark situations, both spiritually and emotionally, and to drive away shadows of doubt, fear, or oppression.

Materials Required

A clay lamp or lantern

Olive oil

A small strip of linen for a wick

Myrrh oil or resin

A basin of sand (to set the lamp upon)

Preparation:

Choose the evening for this ritual, just after sunset. Wash your hands and face before beginning. The lamp must be unlit until the precise moment of invocation.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Pour olive oil into the lamp until it is almost full

Place the linen wick in the oil, leaving one end exposed.

Rub your hands with myrrh oil, inhaling deeply three times.

Speak the incantation as you light the lamp.

Place the lamp in the basin of sand and sit before it in silence for seven minutes, imagining divine light filling your body.

If the lamp is for a home, carry it to each room before letting it rest in the main living space.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Yehi or Elohim beqirbi."

(“Let there be the light of God within me.”)

Warnings:

Never blow out this lamp. Let it burn naturally or extinguish it by pinching the wick. Use this ritual only for illumination of spirit, never for revealing another's secrets.

Spell 3: The Tower of David

Drawn from the Song of Solomon's description of David's tower, symbolizing strength and defense (Song of Solomon 4:4).

Purpose:

To create a steadfast defense against spiritual attack and give the practitioner courage in times of great trial.

Materials Required:

Twelve smooth stones

A bowl of saltwater

A small ram's horn (shofar) or a simple conch shell if unavailable

A length of red wool thread

Preparation:

Fast for half a day before the ritual. Choose an open space where the stones can be arranged in a circle. If indoors, clear the floor and make space for a full circle.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Dip each stone in the saltwater, saying "Kadosh" (Holy) with each one.

Arrange the stones in a perfect circle, tying the red thread from stone to stone until the circle is fully connected.

Stand in the center, lift the ram's horn, and sound it once.

Speak the incantation and stand silently until you feel a shift in the atmosphere.

Leave the circle undisturbed for at least one full day.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Hashem tzuri u'misgavi."

(“The Lord is my rock and my fortress.”)

Warnings:

This spell works best when done in humility. Do not boast of your protection, or the walls may crumble. Never break the circle early doing so may weaken its effect.

Spell 4: The Mantle of Samuel

Inspired by the prophet Samuel’s sacred mantle, symbolizing his role as a judge, seer, and divine messenger (1 Samuel 15:27).

Purpose:

To cloak the practitioner in divine favor, shielding them from curses, deceit, and spiritual harm.

Materials Required:

A pure white woolen shawl or robe

A bowl of spring water

Sprig of hyssop

A small vial of cedar oil

A clean, flat stone

Preparation:

Perform at dawn, when the light first breaks the horizon. Wear clean clothes and have the shawl or robe washed beforehand.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Place the flat stone on the ground facing east.

Pour the spring water into a bowl and dip the hyssop in it, sprinkling the robe three times.

Rub cedar oil gently into the fabric edges.

Stand barefoot on the stone, hold the robe high, and recite the incantation

Wrap the robe around yourself and remain silent for seven breaths, envisioning divine light enveloping you.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Levush yeshuati, atarah kevodi."

(“Garment of salvation, crown of my glory.”)

Warnings:

Only use this mantle for righteous purposes. Wearing it with ill intent invites spiritual exposure rather than concealment.

Spell 5: The Ark's Blessing

Rooted in the Ark of the Covenant's divine protection and power (Exodus 25:10–22).

Purpose:

To bless a dwelling, ensuring peace, holiness, and divine guardianship.

Materials Required:

Two small gold-painted wooden rods

A cedar box (small)

A parchment with Psalm 91 written on it

A handful of frankincense granules

Preparation:

Choose a quiet day, preferably Sabbath eve. Clean the entire home beforehand.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Place the parchment inside the cedar box with frankincense.

Insert the gold-painted rods into the sides, mimicking the Ark's design.

Carry the box through each room of the house while reciting Psalm 91 aloud.

When finished, place the box in a high, undisturbed place.

Recite the incantation once more over the closed box.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Shekhinah shmor beiti."

(“Divine Presence, guard my house.”)

Warnings:

Never open the box except for renewal of the parchment once a year. Treat the box with utmost reverence.

Spell 6: The Crown of Light

Inspired by the shining faces of Moses and Stephen after being filled with the Spirit (Exodus 34:29, Acts 6:15).

Purpose:

To bring clarity, repel deceit, and inspire others through visible peace and authority.

Materials Required:

A circlet of olive branches

Pure beeswax candle

A basin of clean water

Myrrh resin

Preparation:

Conduct the ritual at sunrise. Wear white garments.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Place the olive circlet before the candle.

Burn myrrh until the scent fills the air.

Dip your hands in the water, then anoint your forehead and temples.

Light the candle and hold the circlet above the flame for three breaths.

Place the circlet on your head and speak the incantation.

Sit in silence, facing the sun, for nine minutes.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Or Elai, or alai."

(“Light of God upon me, light over me.”)

Warnings:

This crown is symbolic do not use it for pride. It fades if used for manipulation or vanity.

Spell 7: The Pillar of Fire

Based on God's guiding pillar of fire in Exodus 13:21.

Purpose:

To guide the practitioner through uncertain paths and protect them during journeys

Materials Required:

A tall beeswax candle

Sand in a fireproof bowl

Small vial of olive oil

Tiny bronze bell

Preparation:

Perform at dusk before travel, or before a decision that will take you into the unknown.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Place the candle in the bowl of sand.

Pour a drop of olive oil at its base.

Light the candle and ring the bell three times.

Speak the incantation while looking into the flame.

Let it burn for 30 minutes before extinguishing with a snuffer.

Carry a small piece of the candle wax with you during your journey.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Lech lefanai, Adonai."

(“Go before me, O Lord.”)

Warnings:

The wax must be kept intact until your return; if lost, repeat the ritual.

Spell 8: The Wall of Nehemiah

Inspired by Nehemiah’s rebuilding of Jerusalem’s walls under divine direction (Nehemiah 4:6).

Purpose:

To establish spiritual fortifications around one’s home or life.

Materials Required:

Twelve small bricks or stone.

Bowl of saltwater

Small silver coin

Piece of parchment with the word “Shalom” written in Hebrew

Preparation:

Conduct during a waxing moon to signify growth and building.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Dip each stone in saltwater and say “Shalom.”

Arrange the stones in a square or circle around your dwelling’s foundation or symbolic space.

Place the silver coin in the center with the parchment beneath it.

Stand over it and recite the incantation.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Chomat hashem, sagur li."

(“The wall of the Lord is closed around me.”)

Warnings:

Never remove a stone from the wall once set unless dismantling the blessing entirely.

Spell 9: The Blessing of Aaron

From the priestly blessing given by Aaron in Numbers 6:24–26.

Purpose:

To bestow peace, protection, and divine favor on individuals or gatherings.

Materials Required:

Small vial of anointing oil (olive, myrrh, cinnamon)

White linen cloth

Fresh flowers (any kind)

Preparation:

Perform in an open space, ideally outdoors in the morning.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Anoint your forehead and hands with the oil.

Lay the white cloth on the ground and place the flowers in its center.

Speak the Aaronic blessing over the flowers.

Distribute the flowers to each person you wish to bless.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Yevarechecha Adonai v'yishmerecha."

(“The Lord bless you and keep you.”)

Warnings:

The oil must be freshly prepared and never sold it is for blessing only.

Spell 10: The Guardian Angel's Seal

Drawn from prophetic visions of angels guarding the faithful (Psalm 91:11).

Purpose:

To invoke angelic guardianship over a person or sacred object

Materials Required:

Small piece of pure silver

Carving tool or pin

Blue silk pouch

A drop of frankincense oil

Preparation:

Perform on a clear night with visible stars.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Carve the Hebrew letter “Aleph” (א) into the silver.

Anoint it with frankincense oil.

Place it into the blue silk pouch.

Hold the pouch to your heart and recite the incantation three times.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Malachai shamru oti."

(“My angels guard me.”)

Warnings:

Do not let this seal touch the ground. If it does, cleanse it in running water and redo the ritual.

CHAPTER TWO

SPELLS OF HEALING AND RESTORATION

Spell 21: The Balm of Gilead

Taken from Jeremiah 8:22 “Is there no balm in Gilead?” a healing salve famed for its restorative properties.

Purpose:

To heal emotional wounds, ease grief, and bring peace to a troubled heart.

Materials Required:

Myrrh resin

Olive oil

Mortar and pestle

White linen cloth

Small clay jar

Preparation:

Perform at sunset on the seventh day of the week. Fast from dawn until the ritual is complete.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Grind the myrrh resin into fine powder with the mortar and pestle.

Warm the olive oil gently, then mix with the myrrh until a smooth balm forms.

Place the balm in the clay jar and wrap it in the white linen cloth.

Hold the jar close to your heart and recite the incantation three times.

Apply a small amount to the temples, wrists, or heart area when seeking healing.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Refa nafshi, Adonai."

(“Heal my soul, O Lord.”)

Warnings:

This balm is for anointing, not consumption. Always prepare it with pure intent, as bitterness of heart can nullify its effect.

Spell 22: Waters of Elisha

Inspired by Elisha's purifying of Jericho's waters (2 Kings 2:19–22).

Purpose:

To purify and sanctify water for drinking, bathing, or sprinkling upon the sick.

Materials Required:

Fresh spring water in a clear vessel

Small bowl of salt

Laurel leaf

Preparation:

Best performed under the morning sun. Ensure the water is pure and untainted.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Hold the bowl of salt in your right hand and lift it toward the sun.

Recite the incantation over the salt.

Cast the salt into the water and stir with the laurel leaf three times.

Leave the vessel uncovered in the sunlight for seven minutes

Use immediately or store in a clean glass container.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Tahor hamayim, b'shem Adonai."

(“Let the waters be pure in the name of the Lord.”)

Warnings:

Use only for healing and blessing. If the water becomes cloudy or foul-smelling, discard and repeat the ritual.

Spell 23: The Breath of Life

From Genesis 2:7 the breath that gave Adam life.

Purpose:

To restore vitality to the weary and renew spiritual strength.

Materials Required:

A sprig of fresh mint

A shallow bowl of warm water

Small incense burner with frankincense

Preparation:

Conduct at dawn, facing east, after a night of rest.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Light the frankincense and allow the smoke to rise.

Dip the mint sprig into the warm water.

Hold the sprig over your heart and breathe deeply three times.

Sprinkle a few drops of the water onto your head, chest, and hands.

Speak the incantation while breathing slowly and deliberately.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"N'shama chadasha ten li."

(“Grant me a new soul-breath.”)

Warnings:

Best used for renewal after sickness or spiritual fatigue. Avoid performing when angry or unsettled.

Spell 24: The Healing Hand of Isaiah

Drawn from Isaiah’s prophetic acts of comfort and restoration (Isaiah 38:21)

Purpose:

To speed the recovery of those suffering from illness.

Materials Required:

Warm water in a clay bowl

Cotton bandage

Preparation:

Performed in the home of the afflicted, in a quiet and undisturbed place.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Soak the fig leaves in the warm water for five minutes.

Lay the leaves directly upon the area of discomfort.

Bind gently with the cotton bandage.

Place your right hand over the bandage and recite the incantation.

Leave for one hour before removing. Repeat for three consecutive days.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Rapha Adonai, u'kam."

(“The Lord heals, and they rise.”)

Warnings:

Always ensure leaves are fresh and clean. This is a sacred act and should not replace urgent medical care when needed.

Spell 25: The Song of Miriam

Inspired by Miriam's song of victory and joy after crossing the Red Sea (Exodus 15:20–21).

Purpose:

To lift depression, banish hopelessness, and restore joy of spirit.

Materials Required:

Small tambourine or drum

Blue ribbon

Lavender oil

Preparation:

Conduct outdoors where sunlight and wind are present.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Tie the blue ribbon to the tambourine.

Anoint your forehead with a drop of lavender oil

Beat the tambourine rhythmically while speaking the incantation.

Dance or sway in a circle, allowing joy to rise in your heart.

Continue until you feel a lightness within.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Shir chadash b'libi."

(“A new song in my heart.”)

Warnings:

This ritual works best when done with sincerity. Forced joy will not bring lasting change.

Spell 26: The Oil of Anointing

Based on the sacred anointing oil given to Moses by divine instruction (Exodus 30:22–25).

Purpose:

To consecrate the sick for healing, invoking the presence of God's spirit for restoration.

Materials Required:

Olive oil

Myrrh oil

Cinnamon bark

Cassia

Mortar and pestle

Small glass vial

Preparation:

Perform during the waxing moon to symbolize increase in health and strength.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Grind the cinnamon bark and cassia into a fine powder.

Warm the olive oil slightly over a low flame.

Mix in the powdered spices and a few drops of myrrh oil.

Pour into the glass vial and seal.

Anoint the sick person's forehead, hands, and feet while speaking the prayer.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Mashach Adonai b'refuah."

(“The Lord anoints with healing.”)

Warnings:

Never replicate the exact original Temple oil recipe for common use this blend is symbolic.

Spell 27: The River of Ezekiel

From Ezekiel's vision of the river flowing from the temple, bringing life wherever it goes (Ezekiel 47:9).

Purpose:

To cleanse the spirit and restore physical health through symbolic immersion.

Materials Required:

Basin or tub of clean water

White stone

Small branch of hyssop

Preparation:

Perform at dawn for renewal energy or sunset for healing rest.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Place the white stone at the bottom of the water basin.

Dip the hyssop in water and sprinkle yourself (or the one needing healing) three times.

Step into the water and remain still for seven breaths.

Speak the prayer, then slowly exit without turning back to the basin.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Nahar chayim y'azreni."

(“The river of life sustains me.”)

Warnings:

Water must be fresh and unused before each ritual. Never re-enter the same basin once the act is complete.

Spell 28: The Tears of Hannah

From Hannah’s heartfelt prayer for a child and the Lord’s granting of her request (1 Samuel 1:10–20).

Purpose:

To bring comfort and hope to those in despair, especially those praying for healing or blessing.

Materials Required:

Small clay cup

Fresh rainwater

Petals from a white lily

Preparation:

Best performed in solitude and silence.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Place the lily petals in the clay cup.

Pour fresh rainwater over them, letting the fragrance rise.

Hold the cup close and whisper your prayer of healing or restoration

Pour the water slowly onto the ground, symbolizing the release of grief.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Shema d'mati, Adonai."

(“Hear my tears, O Lord.”)

Warnings:

This ritual is deeply emotional only perform it when ready to release pain.

Spell 29: The Staff of Aaron

From the account of Aaron’s staff budding, blossoming, and bearing fruit as a sign of divine favor (Numbers 17:8).

Purpose:

To restore strength and vitality to the weak or exhausted.

Materials Required:

Wooden staff or walking stick

Red ribbon

Almond branch (fresh or dried)

Preparation:

Conduct during daylight hours, ideally outdoors.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Tie the red ribbon around the upper part of the staff.

Affix the almond branch to the staff's top

Hold the staff upright and strike the ground three times.

Recite the incantation while lifting the staff toward the sky.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Parach nafshi k'almond."

(“Let my soul blossom like the almond tree.”)

Warnings:

The staff must be treated as sacred – never use it for mundane tasks after consecration.

Spell 30: The Cup of Blessing

Reflecting the biblical imagery of the overflowing cup in Psalm 23:5.

Purpose:

To bless a person with restored health and abundance of spirit.

Materials Required:

Silver or wooden cup

Grape juice or wine

Small sprig of rosemary

Preparation:

Performed at sunset with the first star visible in the sky.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Fill the cup until the liquid nearly overflows.

Place the rosemary into the cup and let it steep briefly

Lift the cup toward the heavens and speak the incantation.

Drink slowly or share with the one being blessed.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Kos yeshuot esa."

(“I will lift the cup of salvation.”)

Warnings:

This ritual should be performed in gratitude, not desperation, to align with the psalm's blessing.

CHAPTER THREE

SPELLS OF VISION AND PROPHECY

Spell 31: The Dream of Daniel

Drawn from the prophet Daniel's God-given gift of dream interpretation (Daniel 2:19–23).

Purpose:

To unlock the meaning of dreams and receive divine insight through the night.

Materials Required:

White linen pillowcase

Small pouch of frankincense and myrrh

A verse or passage written on parchment (Daniel 2:22)

A cup of warm milk with honey

Preparation:

Before sleeping, abstain from heavy food and distractions. Keep your mind clear and your heart humble.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Place the parchment inside the pillowcase

Place the pouch of frankincense and myrrh beneath your pillow.

Drink the milk with honey slowly while reciting the incantation.

Lie down, facing east, and breathe deeply, inviting divine visions.

Upon waking, write down every detail of your dream before speaking to anyone.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Geluy razin ata, Adonai."

(“You are the revealer of mysteries, O Lord.”)

Warnings:

Do not attempt to force a dream this ritual works only when the visions are given freely by the Spirit. Keep all interpretations in prayer before sharing.

Spell 32: The Seer's Mirror

Based on prophetic symbols of “seeing darkly” in a mirror until divine clarity comes (1 Corinthians 13:12, also related to ancient bronze mirrors of the Tabernacle).

Purpose:

To glimpse future events or hidden truths through reflective meditation.

Materials Required:

Polished bronze or silver mirror

A dark blue cloth

Three white candles

A sprig of sage for cleansing

Preparation:

The mirror must be ritually cleansed with sage smoke before use. Perform at midnight under a waxing moon.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Place the dark blue cloth on a table and set the mirror upon it.

Arrange the three candles in a triangle around the mirror and light them.

Pass the sage smoke over the mirror, saying the prayer once.

Stare into the mirror's reflection without blinking for as long as possible allowing visions to form naturally

End the ritual by covering the mirror with the cloth before extinguishing the candles.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Or panecha er'eh."

(“Let me behold the light of Your face.”)

Warnings:

This spell may reveal symbolic images rather than direct answers.

Misinterpretation is the greatest danger seek counsel before acting on visions.

Spell 33: The Star Map of Abraham

Inspired by God's covenant with Abraham, showing him the stars as a sign of promise (Genesis 15:5).

Purpose:

To discern divine timing and guidance through celestial observation.

Materials Required:

A simple star chart or astrolabe

Small oil lamp

Sand or earth in a shallow bowl

A rod or stylus

Preparation:

Perform outdoors on a clear night when stars are visible in abundance.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Light the oil lamp and place it near the sand-filled bowl.

Observe the sky, selecting one constellation or cluster of stars.

Using the stylus, trace the constellation into the sand.

Speak the incantation while focusing on your question or need for direction

Leave the traced pattern overnight, erasing it at dawn as a sign of surrendering the answer to God.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Saphor hakochavim."

(“Count the stars.”)

Warnings:

This is not astrology for fortune-telling but a sacred act of reflection. Using it for vanity or manipulation will yield no true vision.

Spell 34: The Trumpet of Revelation

Drawn from the visions of John on Patmos, where the sound of the trumpet announced divine revelation (Revelation 1:10).

Purpose:

To awaken the spiritual senses and prepare the soul for prophetic insight.

Materials Required:

Ram's horn (shofar) or small brass horn

White linen garment

A candle of pure beeswax

Preparation:

Perform at sunrise to symbolize new illumination.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Dress in the white linen garment.

Light the beeswax candle and place it before you

Hold the shofar to your lips, close your eyes, and focus on the presence of God.

Sound the shofar three times, each blast followed by silent prayer.

When the silence feels full, speak your question to the heavens and wait for signs in dreams, visions, or scripture over the next three days.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Kol Adonai yishama."

(“Let the voice of the Lord be heard.”)

Warnings:

The trumpet is not a toy; treat it as a sacred instrument. Sounding it frivolously diminishes its power.

Spell 35: The Scroll of Seven Seal

From the Book of Revelation’s sealed scroll containing divine mysteries (Revelation 5:1–5).

Purpose:

To reveal a hidden truth when the time is right.

Materials Required:

Seven small strips of parchment

Red sealing wax

Writing ink and quill

A small wooden box

Preparation:

Performed in complete solitude, preferably during the waning moon.

Full Ritual Instructions:

On each strip of parchment, write a prayer or question.

Roll each strip and seal with red wax.

Place all seven into the wooden box and close it.

Keep the box untouched until a moment of great need.

When the time comes, open one seal at a time while reciting the prayer.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Petach Adonai et ha'sefer."

(“Lord, open the scroll.”)

Warnings:

Do not open the seals prematurely the ritual's strength lies in divine timing.

Spell 36: The Lamp of Samuel

Based on the prophet Samuel's calling in the temple, when the lamp of God had not yet gone out (1 Samuel 3:3-10).

Purpose:

To hear divine calling or receive a prophetic word in stillness.

Materials Required:

Oil lamp with pure olive oil

Small mat to kneel upon

White head covering

Preparation:

Perform at night in a quiet, undisturbed place.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Light the oil lamp and sit or kneel beside it.

Cover your head with the white cloth to focus the mind.

Pray silently, inviting the Lord to speak.

Keep still for as long as the lamp burns, noting any inner impressions or visions.

Record what you receive without interpretation until later prayer confirms it.

Incantation Ancient Hebrew):

"Daber, Adonai, ki shome'a avdecha."

(“Speak, Lord, for Your servant is listening.”)

Warnings:

This requires patience. Do not rush or expect immediate results.

Spell 37: The Vision on the Mountain

From Moses' encounters with God on Mount Sinai (Exodus 19–20, 34).

Purpose:

To seek high clarity and divine revelation through physical and spiritual ascent.

Materials Required

Walking staff

Flask of fresh water

Small stone to carry back

Preparation:

Fast for at least six hours before performing.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Climb to the highest safe point you can access a hill or mountain

Drink a sip of water before beginning your prayer.

Stand with the walking staff planted before you and lift your eyes to the sky.

Speak your question, then remain silent for several minutes.

Pick up the small stone to carry home as a reminder of the revelation.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Esa einai el he'harim."

(“I lift my eyes to the mountains.”)

Warnings:

Choose a location where you will not be disturbed. Avoid dangerous terrain.

Spell 38: The Cloud of Elijah

Inspired by Elijah's vision of the small cloud that heralded rain after drought (1 Kings 18:44-45).

Purpose:

To receive signs of change or the answer to persistent prayer

Materials Required:

Bowl of clear water

Small piece of white cloth

Open window with a view of the sky

Preparation:

Best done when expecting a spiritual breakthrough.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Place the bowl of water on the windowsill.

Dip the white cloth into the water and wring it out over the bowl three times.

Stare into the water's surface while keeping part of the sky in view.

When an image forms in water or sky recite the incantation.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Hinei anan k'kap ish."

(“Behold, a cloud as small as a man’s hand.”)

Warnings:

This ritual works through patience and attentiveness. Do not force an image to appear.

Spell 39: The Writing on the Wall

From the mysterious hand that wrote on King Belshazzar’s wall, interpreted by Daniel (Daniel 5:5–12).

Purpose:

To reveal hidden warnings or truths.

Materials Required:

Smooth wall or parchment

Small dish of oil mixed with charcoal dust

Brush or reed pen

Preparation:

Performed in low light, preferably by candle flame.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Dip the brush into the oil-charcoal mixture.

Write a single word representing your question or concern.

Sit quietly, staring at the writing until impressions or visions come.

Wipe the writing away to close the ritual.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Ketov Adonai et svaro."

(“Write, O Lord, Your counsel.”)

Warnings:

Interpretations should be tested through scripture and wise counsel.

Spell 40: The Open Heaven

From Jacob’s dream of the ladder reaching heaven (Genesis 28:12–17).

Purpose:

To open oneself to divine messages and angelic visitation.

Materials Required:

Smooth stone for a headrest

White blanket or shawl

Small vial of olive oil

Preparation:

Perform at night under an open sky.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Lay the white blanket on the ground.

Place the stone at the head of the blanket.

Lie down, close your eyes, and breathe deeply, imagining the heavens above you.

Whisper the incantation, then rest in silence.

Upon waking, anoint the stone with oil and keep it as a sacred marker.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Zeh sha'ar ha'shamayim."

(“This is the gate of heaven.”)

Warnings:

Do not perform indoors the open sky is essential for the symbolism and presence.

CHAPTER FOUR

SPELLS OF JUSTICE AND JUDGMENT

Spell 41: The Oath of Boaz

Inspired by Boaz's solemn pledge before witnesses to redeem Ruth (Ruth 4:9–11).

Purpose:

To bind an oath in truth and righteousness so that neither party can break it without spiritual consequence.

Materials Required:

Small loaf of bread

Cup of grape juice or wine

A small pouch of soil from holy ground

Preparation:

Performed in the presence of witnesses or under the open sky.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Break the bread in two, giving half to the other party.

Sip from the cup and pass it to the other person.

Both place a hand into the pouch of soil while declaring the oath aloud.

Close with a blessing, sealing the promise before God.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Adonai ed b'nei brit."

(“The Lord is witness to this covenant.”)

Warnings:

Breaking such an oath invites spiritual repercussions; do not enter lightly.

Spell 42: The Urim’s Light

Based on the Urim and Thummim, sacred objects used by Israelite priests to reveal God’s judgment (Exodus 28:30).

Purpose:

To discern divine judgment or the truth of a matter.

Materials Required:

Two white stones, one marked with a circle, the other with a cross

White cloth to wrap them

Lamp or candle

Preparation:

Perform in darkness with only the single lamp for illumination.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Place the two stones in the cloth and mix them.

Ask your question aloud before the lamp.

Draw one stone without looking.

Interpret the symbol according to the question circle for yes/approval, cross for no/denial.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Or Adonai yivchar."

(“The light of the Lord will choose.”)

Warnings:

This method should be used for serious matters, not trivial ones.

Spell 43: The Scales of Daniel

From Daniel’s interpretation of the writing “You have been weighed in the balance and found wanting” (Daniel 5:27).

Purpose:

To determine the moral weight of a decision or person's actions.

Materials Required:

A set of balanced scales

Feather (symbol of purity)

Small stone (symbol of burden)

Preparation:

Conduct in a quiet space after fasting for one meal.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Place the feather on one side of the scale and the stone on the other.

Speak the name of the person or decision in question.

Meditate on which side feels "heavier" in your spirit, regardless of the scale's physical balance.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Mishkal Adonai."

("The balance of the Lord.")

Warnings:

This is symbolic divination; final judgment rests with God, not the ritual alone.

Spell 44: The Sword of Gideon

From the battle cry “The sword of the Lord and of Gideon!” (Judges 7:20).

Purpose:

To summon divine aid in defeating injustice or oppression.

Materials Required:

Small dagger or symbolic sword

Strip of white cloth

Lamp or torch

Preparation:

Perform at night in the open air.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Wrap the cloth around the hilt of the blade.

Hold the torch high and the blade in the other hand.

Shout the incantation aloud three times.

Extinguish the torch, symbolizing the enemy’s defeat.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Cherev Adonai v'Gid'on!"

(“The sword of the Lord and of Gideon!”)

Warnings:

The sword may be symbolic; physical violence is never the purpose.

Spell 45: The Witness of Stones

From Joshua's placing of a stone as a witness to Israel's covenant (Joshua 24:27).

Purpose:

To bind a truth or agreement into the spiritual record.

Materials Required:

Large smooth stone

Chisel or marker

Oil for anointing

Preparation:

Select a stone that will remain undisturbed.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Carve or write a word or symbol representing the covenant.

Anoint the stone with oil.

Declare aloud that the stone bears witness before heaven and earth.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Ha'even hazot edah."

(“This stone is a witness.”)

Warnings:

The stone must not be defiled or moved unnecessarily.

Spell 46: The Breath of Truth

Inspired by the breath of God that reveals and gives life (Genesis 2:7; John 20:22).

Purpose:

To expose falsehood and bring truth into the open.

Materials Required:

White candle

Small sprig of mint or rosemary

Preparation:

Perform in the morning when the air is fresh.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Light the candle and hold the herb near your lips

Breathe gently through the herb toward the flame, imagining the breath carrying truth into the world.

Speak your request for truth aloud.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Ruach emet galeh."

(“Spirit of truth, reveal.”)

Warnings:

This ritual often works through subsequent events rather than instant revelation.

Spell 47: The Rod of Moses

From Moses’ staff, used to perform signs and judgments (Exodus 4:17).

Purpose:

To call down divine authority in confronting wrongdoing.

Materials Required:

Wooden staff or walking stick

Small piece of linen

Olive oil

Preparation:

Anoint the staff with oil before beginning.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Stand facing the direction of the injustice.

Raise the staff high and declare your call for justice.

Strike the ground three times as a symbolic act.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"B'shem Adonai asher hu Shofet."

(“In the name of the Lord who is Judge.”)

Warnings:

Only to be used for moral causes, not personal vengeance.

Spell 48: The Fire of Elijah

From Elijah calling fire from heaven to prove divine judgment (1 Kings 18:36–38).

Purpose:

To invoke divine intervention in a matter of justice.

Materials Required:

Small altar of stones

Dry wood

Matches or flint

Preparation:

Build the altar carefully, with reverence.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Arrange the wood on the altar.

Pray for God's judgment to be revealed.

Light the fire as a symbolic act of calling for divine action.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Esh min hashamayim teired."

(“Let fire from heaven descend.”)

Warnings:

Never perform in unsafe areas; the fire is symbolic unless divinely manifested.

Spell 49: The Scroll of Accusation

Reflecting the heavenly books that record deeds for judgment (Daniel 7:10; Revelation 20:12).

Purpose:

To place a matter formally before God's court.

Materials Required:

Parchment or paper

Black ink and quill

Clay jar or sealed envelope

Preparation:

Perform at night under the stars.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Write the details of the wrongdoing as if recording for a court.

Seal the writing in the jar or envelope.

Lift it toward the sky and declare it placed before the Judge of all.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Katav lifnei kissei ha'mishpat."

(“Write before the throne of judgment.”)

Warnings:

Do not write false accusations they will return upon the writer.

Spell 50: The Water of Vindication

Inspired by the ritual of bitter waters for testing truth (Numbers 5:11–31).

Purpose:

To clear the innocent or expose the guilty.

Materials Required:

Cup of fresh spring water

Pinch of earth from near your home

Small bowl

Preparation:

Conduct during daylight hours.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Place the earth into the water.

Hold the cup in your hands and speak the request for vindication.

The accused drinks the water willingly to prove innocence before God.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Mayim emet yivdelu."

(“Waters of truth, divide.”)

Warnings:

This is symbolic and should never cause harm; the true judgment comes from God’s response.

CHAPTER FIVE

SPELLS OF LOVE AND UNITY

Spell 51: The Covenant of Ruth

Inspired by Ruth's pledge to Naomi "Where you go, I will go... your people will be my people" (Ruth 1:16–17).

Purpose:

To bind two people in lasting loyalty and mutual care, whether in friendship, marriage, or kinship.

Materials Required:

Two white ribbons

Cup of sweet wine or pomegranate juice

Olive branch sprig

Preparation:

Perform at sunrise to symbolize new beginnings.

Full Ritual Instructions:

The two parties hold the olive branch between them.

Wrap their joined hands in the two ribbons.

Share the cup of wine, each taking three sips.

Speak the pledge aloud together.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Amach ami, Elohayich Elohai."

(“Your people shall be my people, your God my God.”)

Warnings:

This covenant is considered sacred – breaking it dishonors both God and the witnesses present.

Spell 52: The Marriage Canopy Blessing

Based on the Jewish chuppah tradition symbolizing the home built together
(Genesis 24:67).

Purpose:

To sanctify the union of two souls in holy matrimony

Materials Required:

White cloth or canopy

Four poles

Wine cup

Preparation:

Erect the canopy under open sky if possible.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Place the canopy over the couple.

Read a blessing of unity aloud.

Share the wine together.

Conclude with a joyful shout or song.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Yevarech Adonai et beitchem b'shalom."

(“May the Lord bless your house with peace.”)

Warnings:

Should only be performed with sincere intent to honor the bond for life.

Spell 53: The Cord of Three Strands

From Ecclesiastes 4:12 “A cord of three strands is not quickly broken.”

Purpose:

To strengthen a relationship by inviting divine presence as the third strand.

Materials Required:

Three cords (two for the individuals, one representing God)

Small piece of frankincense

Preparation:

Light the frankincense before beginning.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Each person holds one cord.

The third cord is placed between them to represent God.

Braid the cords together while speaking blessings over one another.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Shloshah chutim b'emet."

(“Three cords in truth.”)

Warnings:

Breaking this bond is considered a rejection of divine partnership.

Spell 54: The Reconciliation Table

Inspired by the reconciliations made over shared meals in Scripture (Genesis 31:54; Luke 15:23).

Purpose:

To restore broken friendships or family ties through a sacred meal.

Materials Required:

Loaf of bread

Cup of wine or juice

White table covering

Preparation:

Both parties must agree to the meeting beforehand.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Set the table with the bread and cup at the center.

Each breaks a piece of bread and eats it.

Share the cup together.

Offer forgiveness verbally before parting.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Shalom yachzor beinenu."

(“Let peace return between us.”)

Warnings:

The ritual is powerless without genuine willingness to forgive.

Spell 55: The Blessing of Children

Following the tradition of Jacob blessing his sons and Jesus blessing the little ones (Genesis 49; Mark 10:16).

Purpose:

To bless children with protection, wisdom, and peace.

Materials Required:

Olive oil

White cloth

Small sprig of hyssop

Preparation:

Perform in the presence of family elders.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Place the white cloth over the child's shoulders.

Dip the hyssop in the oil and anoint the child's forehead.

Speak words of blessing over their life.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Yevarechecha Adonai v'yishmerecha."

(“May the Lord bless you and keep you.”)

Warnings:

Should be done in a spirit of love and not superstition.

Spell 56: The Circle of Friends

Reminiscent of the band of brothers David had, bound by loyalty (1 Samuel 18:1-4).

Purpose:

To unite a group in unwavering friendship.

Materials Required:

Small round stone for each member

Circle drawn in sand or earth

Preparation:

Gather at an outdoor location.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Stand in a circle, each holding a stone.

One by one, step into the center, speak a vow of loyalty, and place the stone down.

When all have placed stones, join hands and pray together.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Lev echad b'achva."

(“One heart in brotherhood.”)

Warnings:

This bond is mutual; betrayal breaks the circle's blessing.

Spell 57: The Peace Knot

Based on symbolic knot-tying in ancient covenants (Hosea 2:20).

Purpose:

To end quarrels and bind peace between two people.

Materials Required:

Long white cord

Bowl of rose water

Preparation:

Dip the cord in rose water before beginning.

Full Ritual Instructions

Each holds one end of the cord.

Together, tie three knots while speaking words of peace.

Store the knotted cord in a safe place.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Keshher shalom lo yipareid."

(“The knot of peace will not be undone.”)

Warnings:

Destroying the cord symbolizes breaking the peace.

Spell 58: The Harmony Lamp

Inspired by the unity brought by the lamp in the temple (Exodus 25:37).

Purpose:

To bring harmony into a home or family.

Materials Required:

Oil lamp or candle

Olive oil

Sprig of myrtle

Preparation:

Clean the lamp or candleholder beforehand.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Fill the lamp with oil and light it.

Wave the myrtle over the flame while speaking blessings for harmony.

Let the lamp burn until the oil is gone.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Ner shalom yair."

(“The lamp of peace will shine.”)

Warnings:

Only use in a safe place never leave flame unattended.

Spell 59: The Pact of Jonathan

From the covenant between Jonathan and David, sealed in love and loyalty (1 Samuel 20:16–17).

Purpose:

To bind two friends in a lifelong pact of mutual aid.

Materials Required:

Small silver coin

Red ribbon

Preparation:

Clean the coin before the ritual.

Full Ritual Instructions:

Place the coin in the center between both parties.

Wrap the coin in the red ribbon together.

Each keeps hold of the wrapped coin for a moment while making vows.

Incantation (Ancient Hebrew):

"Brit ahava ad olam."

(“Covenant of love forever.”)

Warnings:

This should never be used manipulatively only freely entered.

Ending Section

As the seeker closes this work, they will find a place of grounding and remembrance a treasury of meanings, signs, and a final act of sealing.

First comes the Glossary of Magical and Prophetic Terms. This section gathers every sacred word, archaic phrase, and prophetic concept used within the grimoire, from anointing to zion-fire. Here the reader may linger, learning the original languages behind certain invocations, the layers of meaning in each sacred act, and the cultural roots from which these words have sprung. It serves both as a guide for the novice and as a deep well for the adept who wishes to anchor their practice in the same understanding as the ancient prophets themselves.

Following it is the Symbol Index, a compendium of the sigils, seals, and holy markings scattered throughout the book. Each is drawn with precise care, accompanied by a detailed account of its origin whether inscribed on the gates of Jerusalem, carved into the staffs of seers, or whispered into existence through divine visions. Their purpose is explained not merely in practical terms, but in the language of sacred resonance: why certain curves carry authority, how circles bind the prayer, why crossing lines repel what is unholy. The seeker learns here that symbols are not merely signs, but living witnesses to covenant and power.

Lastly, the grimoire ends with the Closing Blessing a ritual that seals the book itself. In this act, the reader anoints the outer edges of the pages with a thin trace of consecrated oil, then lays both hands upon the cover. Facing east, they speak the sealing invocation in the original tongue: “Chotem kadosh al sefer zeh” “A holy seal upon this book.” The blessing is concluded with a breath released over the cover, as the prophets of old would breathe life into the works of their hands. From that moment forward, the grimoire becomes a companion bound to the soul of its keeper, its power veiled from the unworthy and opened only to those who walk in reverence.
